Indeed, men's and women's jobs differ greatly, whether across sectors, industries, occupations, types of jobs, or types of firms. While these differences evolve with economic development, the resulting changes in the structure of employment are not enough to eliminate employment segregation by gender. So, women all over the world appear to be concentrated in low-productivity jobs. They ...

Gender roles An incomplete revolution? Female participation in the labour market has increased markedly over the past 30 years. Both men and women in Britain's couple families now tend to work, albeit with women often working part-time when children are young. Has this change been accompanied by a decline in support for a traditional division of gender roles in the home and workplace? And ...
